BetBolt Investigation

Oct 29, 2026 · @Ritik Jain

Summary

BetBolt is a no-KYC crypto casino that started in 2023 as an India-only betting site and went global at the end of 2024. Its anonymous founder, "NapoleonXBT", is most likely Denis Seleznev, a young entrepreneur born in Russia and raised in London. In June 2025 its main domain, betbolt.com, was suspended by the registrar over a legal matter involving external authorities, and the site moved to betbolt.io.

- India first: BetBolt launched with UPI, Paytm and Indian banking, then quietly swapped them for crypto at the end of 2024.
- Licensing: it claims a Costa Rican structure under Nebuchadnezzar Technologies, then a Curaçao licence, but has published no licence documents.
- Underage gambling: its terms ban under-18s, yet NapoleonXBT publicly shrugged off a 17-year-old playing on the site.
- Founder: username history, linked accounts and UK Companies House records point to Denis Seleznev as NapoleonXBT.
- Players: forum users report withdrawals blocked for 15 to 30 days and deposits moved out of their BetBolt wallets.
- Domain: Namecheap put betbolt.com on clientHold and said the matter involved coordination with external authorities, such as courts.
- Team conduct: a founding team member, "Babix", is alleged to have commissioned sexually explicit edited images of a 17-year-old critic.

Date	Event
June 2025	betbolt.com goes offline on clientHold; the site moves to betbolt.io
May 2025	Forum complaints about blocked withdrawals and missing deposits
1 April 2025	NapoleonXBT says BetBolt runs "under a Costa Rica structure"

Date	Event
29 March 2025	NapoleonXBT posts "I am the owner of BetBolt" on a crypto forum
Late 2024	Indian payment methods replaced by crypto; global launch
29 September 2023	Archived capture of the India-era BetBolt site
2023	BetBolt launches for Indian users
17 November 2022	Denis commissions the BetBolt logo from a freelance designer

About BetBolt

BetBolt is an online gambling platform offering sports betting (with a focus on cricket), casino games and online lottery. It lists its headquarters as Tech City, TX, United States, and says it has investment from Lord Investments Group, which lists the same location.

It markets itself as a next-generation crypto casino built on "no KYC, no bureaucracy, and radical transparency":

- No KYC: players are never asked for passports, addresses or proof of funds. BetBolt argues that KYC is used by casinos to delay or avoid paying out.
- No bureaucracy: it promises quick, fair service with no unnecessary delays.
- Transparency: games show their Return to Player (RTP) and, where possible, volatility.

On its public review page, BetBolt holds a 2.0 rating from 18 reviews.

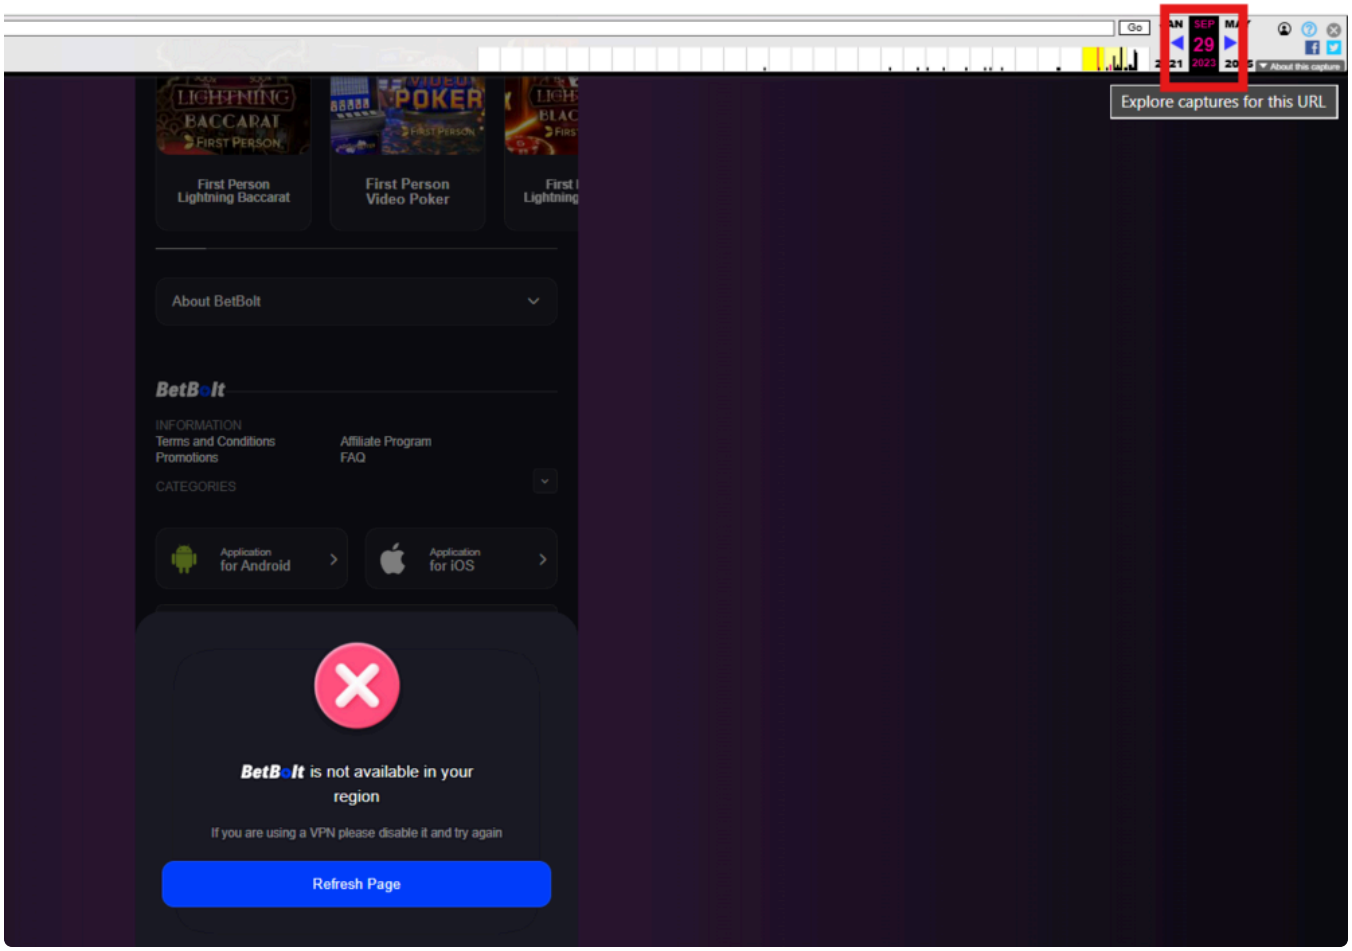

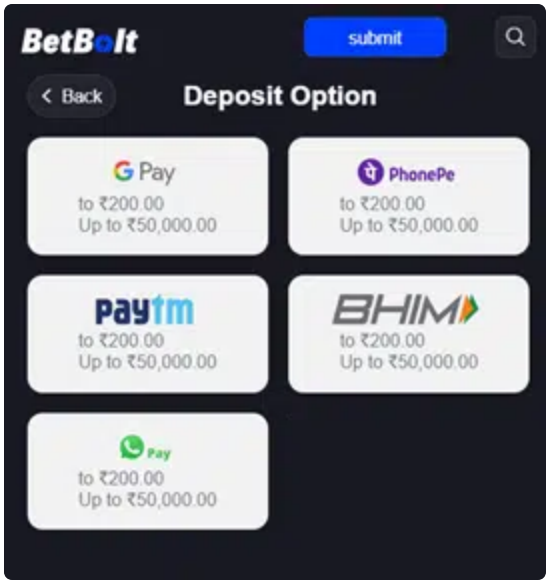

From India-only to global crypto casino

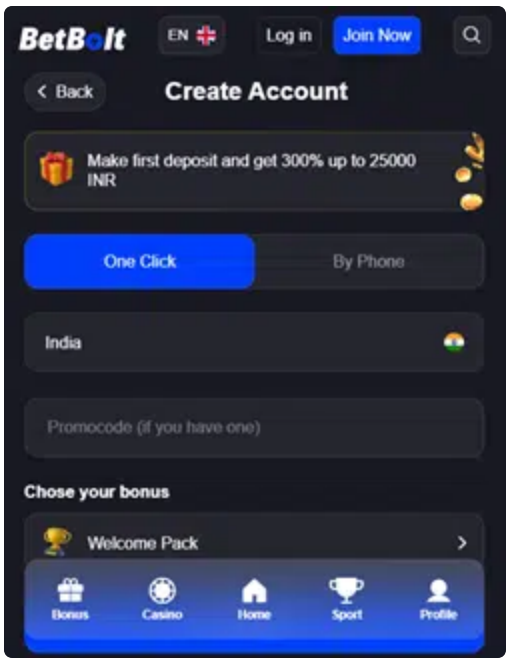

BetBolt began in 2023 as a betting site for Indian users only, then quietly rebuilt itself as a global crypto casino at the end of 2024.

2023: an India-only betting site

At launch, BetBolt served only Indian users. Its payments ran on India-specific rails such as UPI, Paytm and local banks, and new players were offered a 300% bonus of up to ₹25,000. It also promoted itself on Instagram.

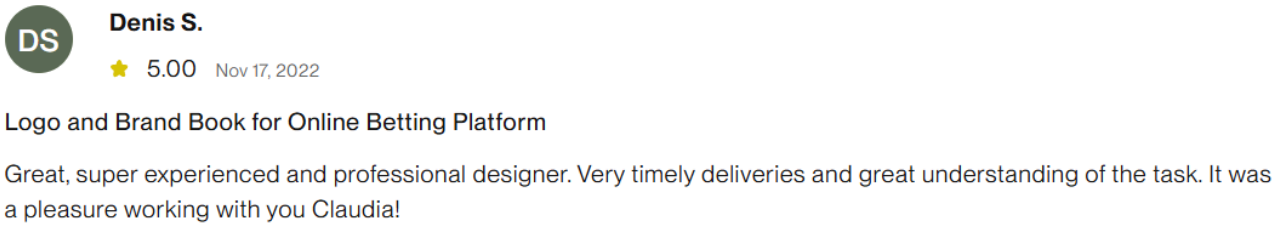

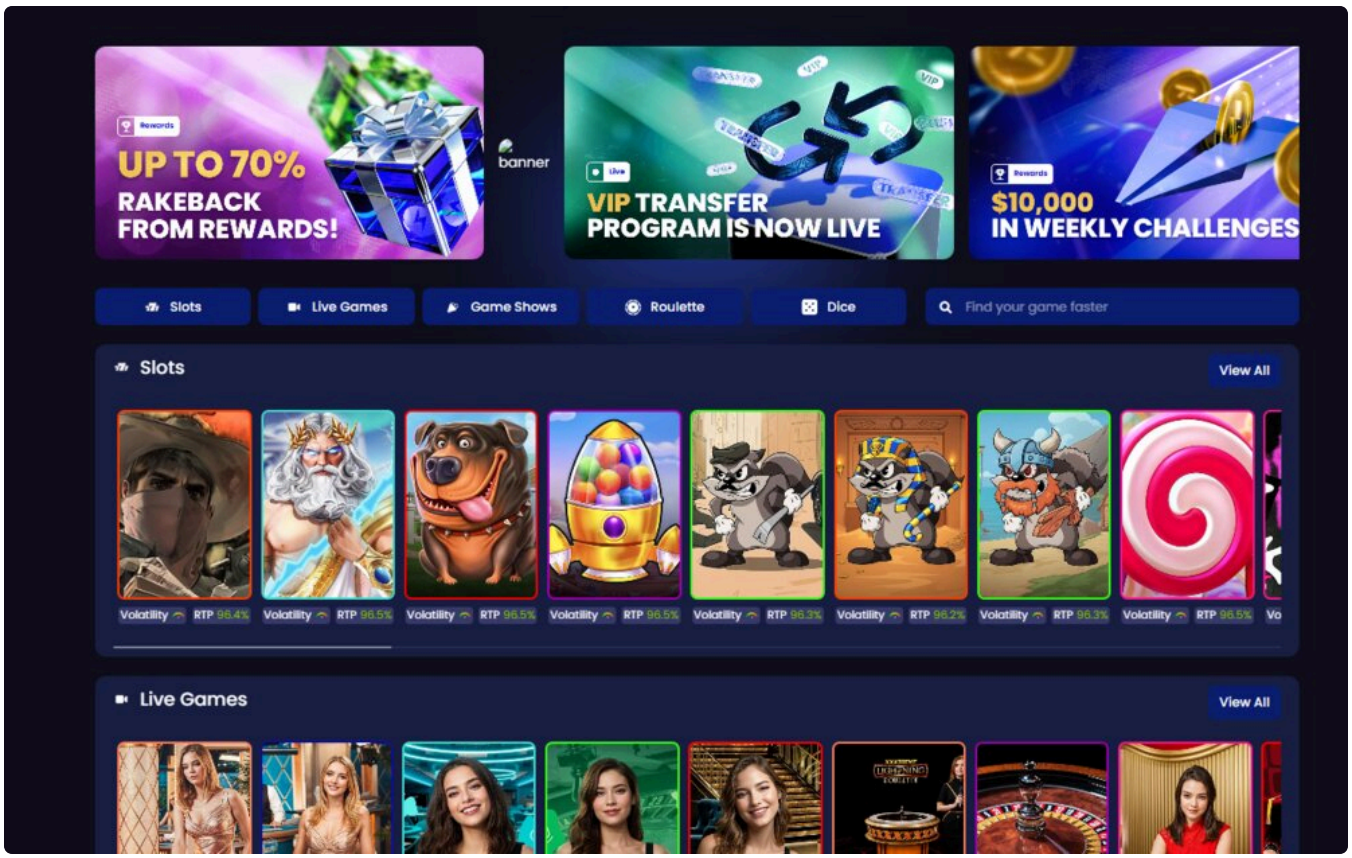

Denis was the founder from the start

NapoleonXBT (Denis) was already running BetBolt in its India phase. On 17 November 2022, before launch, he hired freelance designer Claudia to design the BetBolt logo. That suggests he was the sole founder at the time.

Late 2024: the switch to crypto

At the end of 2024, the Indian payment options disappeared and were replaced by cryptocurrencies. There was no official statement or regional announcement. A local betting site had rebranded for a global audience, relying on the anonymity and reach of digital assets.

Licensing: Costa Rica and Curaçao claims

BetBolt has no verifiable gambling licence: its Costa Rica set-up is not a gambling licence, and its later Curaçao claim has no published proof.

Costa Rica: not a gambling licence

When BetBolt went global in late 2024, it claimed to be owned by Nebuchadnezzar Technologies and to operate under a Costa Rican licence. Costa Rica does not regulate gambling. It only allows companies to operate under a general "data processing" licence, as long as they do not serve Costa Rican residents.

On 1 April 2025, NapoleonXBT confirmed on a crypto forum that BetBolt operates "under a Costa Rica structure" and is "in the process of obtaining licenses." He added that "all of these coconut island licenses are purely cosmetic."

NapoleonXBT (OP)
Copper Member
Newbie

Activity: 5
Merit: 1

Founder / CEO at betbolt.com

Re: BetBolt.com | Crypto's Most Rewarding Casino | VPN & VIP Friendly
April 01, 2025, 09:52:49 AM #40

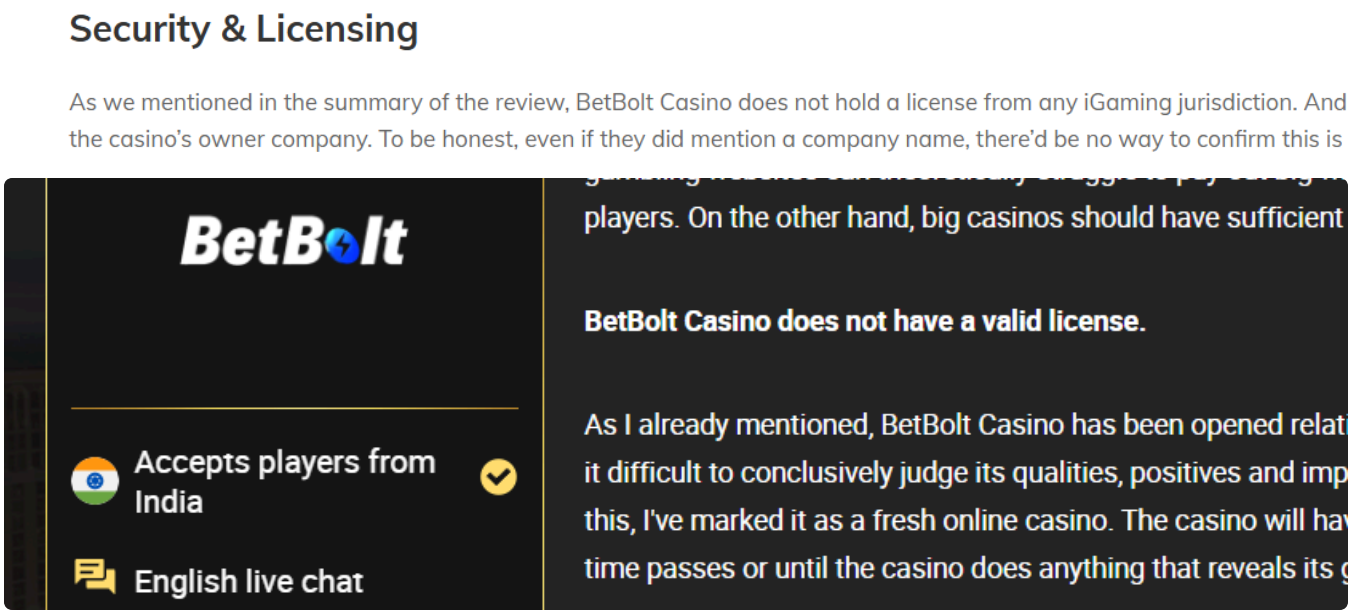

Thank you all for the feedbacks and kind words! I will make sure to be more active here to answer any queries. PrecariousPanda is indeed one of our official representatives and he'll be here to answer any questions.

All of the DMs have been answered with the test balances, enjoy and make sure to test the withdrawals with some of those wins
There are still more spaces so do get in touch

As expected the license is a popular question so let me answer it here: we are currently operating under a Costa Rica structure and are in the process of obtaining licenses.
Frankly, all of these coconut island licenses are purely cosmetic and unfortunately do not protect players if the operator chooses to go rogue.

Curaçao: claimed, not shown

BetBolt later told users it had moved to a Curaçao licence. No updated licence documents, official announcement or verifiable records have been published to confirm the switch. Independent casino reviews also list BetBolt as having no valid licence.

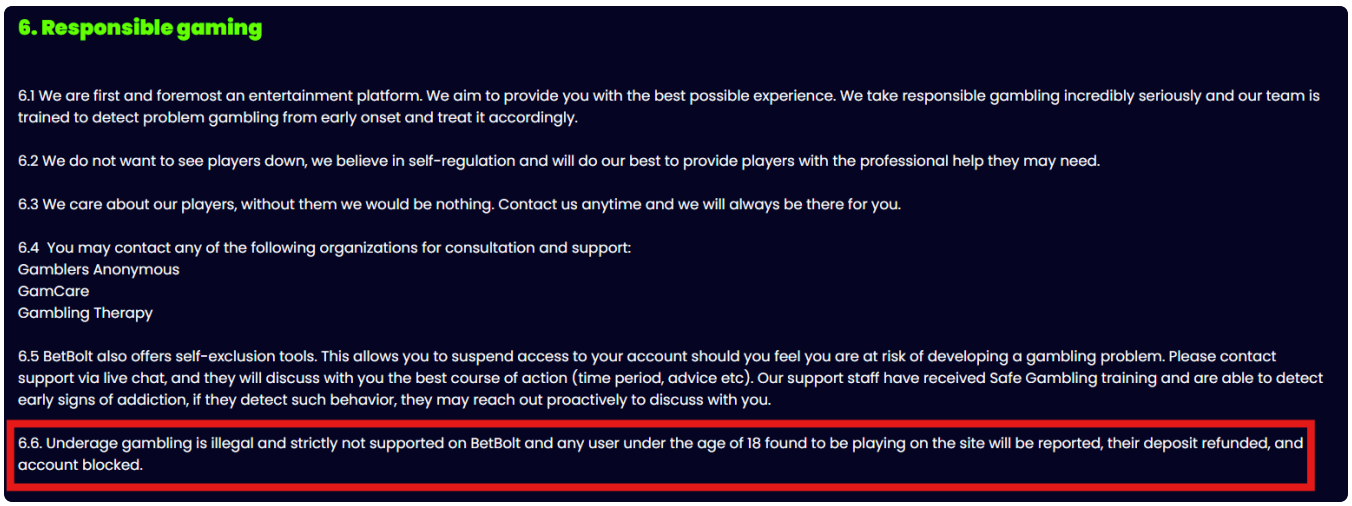

Underage gambling: policy versus practice

BetBolt's terms ban under-18s, but when a user said publicly that they were 17, the founder dismissed the policy rather than enforcing it.

The policy

Clause 6.6 of BetBolt's terms says that "underage gambling is illegal and strictly not supported on BetBolt." Any user found to be under 18 will be reported, have their deposits refunded and have their account permanently blocked.

6. Responsible gaming

6.1 We are first and foremost an entertainment platform. We aim to provide you with the best possible experience. We take responsible gambling incredibly seriously and our team is trained to detect problem gambling from early onset and treat it accordingly.

6.2 We do not want to see players down, we believe in self-regulation and will do our best to provide players with the professional help they may need.

6.3 We care about our players, without them we would be nothing. Contact us anytime and we will always be there for you.

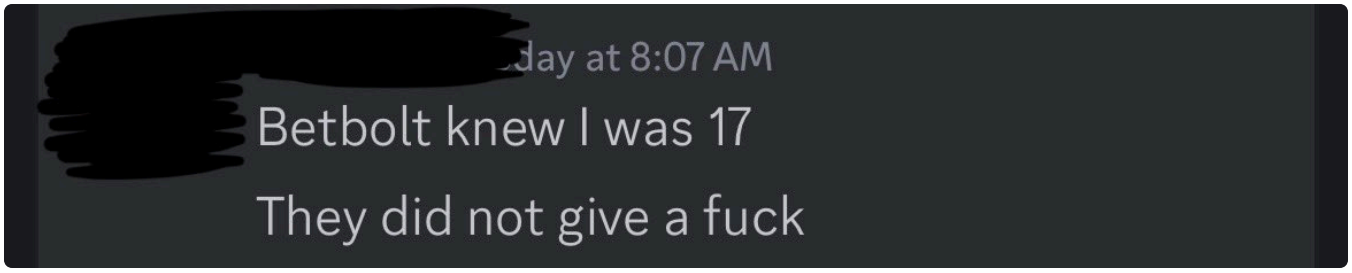

6.4 You may contact any of the following organizations for consultation and support:
Gamblers Anonymous
GamCare
Gambling Therapy

6.5 BetBolt also offers self-exclusion tools. This allows you to suspend access to your account should you feel you are at risk of developing a gambling problem. Please contact support via live chat, and they will discuss with you the best course of action (time period, advice etc). Our support staff have received Safe Gambling training and are able to detect early signs of addiction, if they detect such behavior, they may reach out proactively to discuss with you.

6.6. Underage gambling is illegal and strictly not supported on BetBolt and any user under the age of 18 found to be playing on the site will be reported, their deposit refunded, and account blocked.

The practice

A user publicly said that BetBolt knew they were 17. NapoleonXBT replied on X: "So what if we work with a 17 year old or if a 17 year old plays on the site," adding that players should "understand the risks."

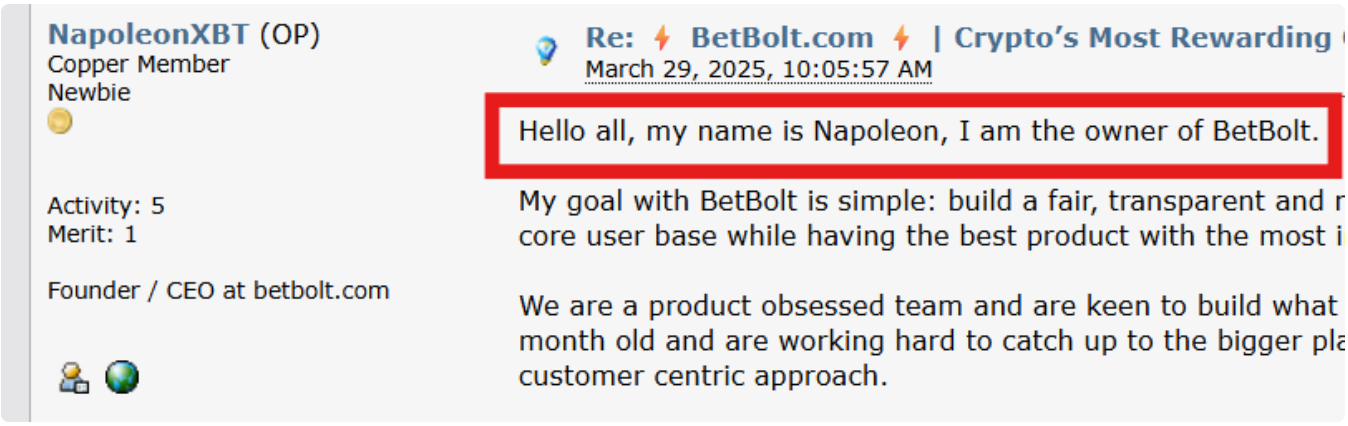

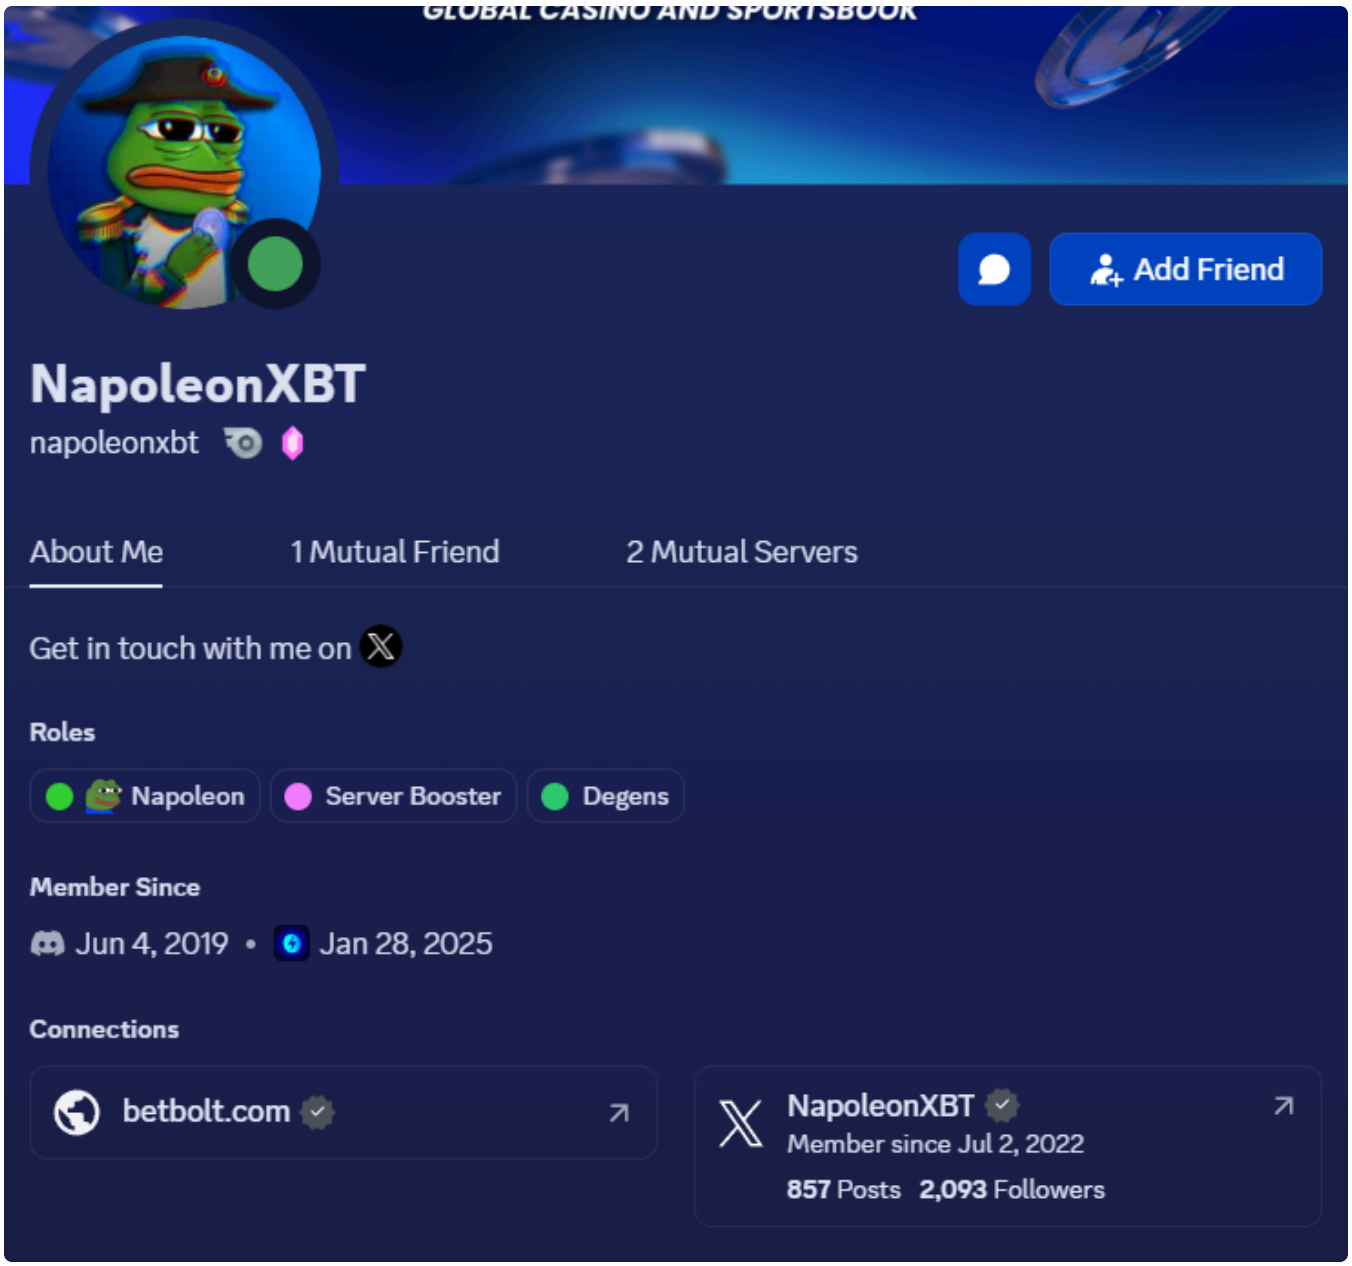

Founder identity: who is behind NapoleonXBT

Username history, linked accounts and public records point to Denis Seleznev as the person behind NapoleonXBT, BetBolt's anonymous founder.

The anonymous persona

BetBolt has never publicly named its CEO or founder. Instead it points to an anonymous X persona, NapoleonXBT. On 29 March 2025, NapoleonXBT introduced himself on a crypto forum: "my name is Napoleon, I am the owner of BetBolt." His Discord profile is connected to betbolt.com.

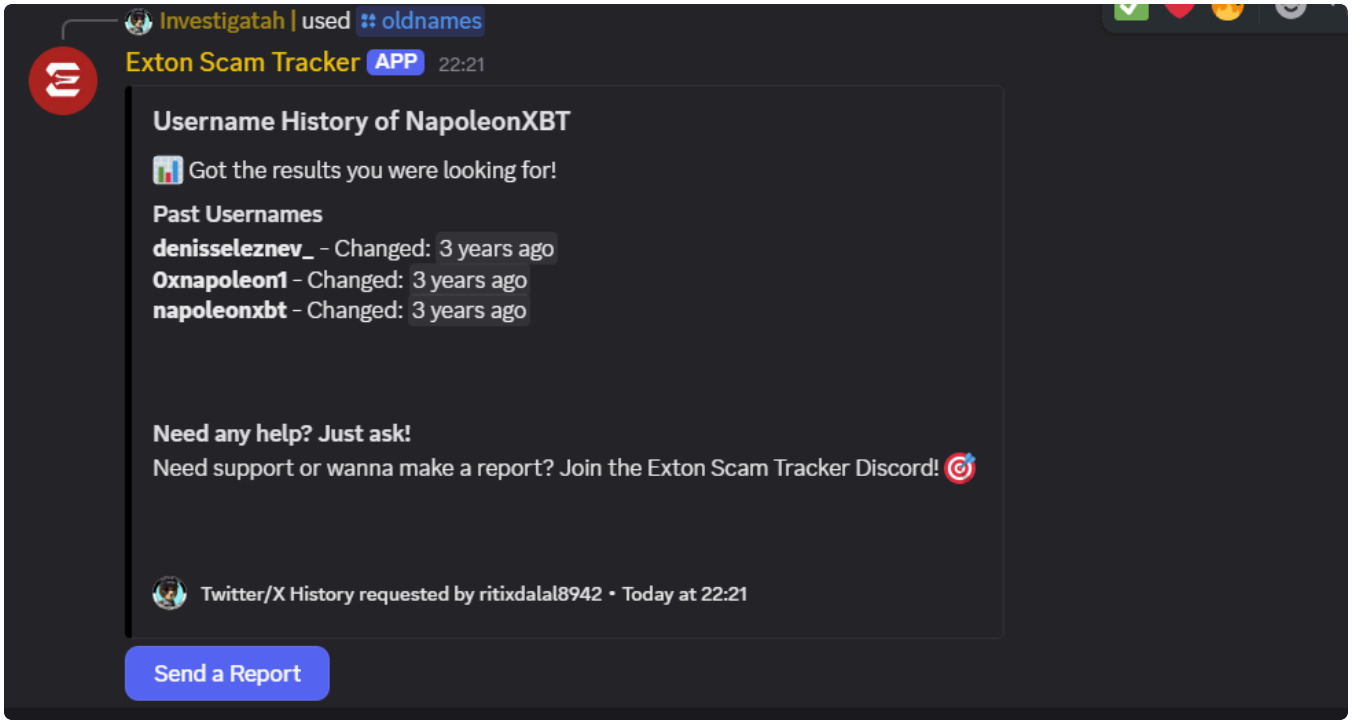

The likely real identity

The evidence, cross-referenced across several sources, points to Denis Seleznev, born in Russia and raised in London. He was 18 when BetBolt launched and had no previous experience in the gambling industry.

The evidence

1. NapoleonXBT's first username was "denisseleznev_". A username-history lookup shows the account was renamed from denisseleznev_ to 0xnapoleonl and then napoleonxbt.

2. NapoleonXBT follows Denis's project, Deedy, on X.

Image — Deedy's X page, "Followed by NapoleonXBT"

3. NapoleonXBT was the earliest member and an admin of the Deedy Discord.

Image — Deedy Discord: NapoleonXBT welcomed as one of the first members

Earlier ventures

Public records show that Denis launched earlier ventures, including Deedy and Slingrock Group, which failed to gain traction and were dissolved. His Companies House record lists two dissolved companies: Deedy Labs Ltd and High Stakes Technologies Limited. He also appeared on a podcast about his Web3 work. BetBolt presents itself as a sophisticated operation, but its origins trace back to a teenager experimenting with startups.

Allegation against team member "Babix"

Babix, who joined BetBolt with Denis at its start, is alleged to have harassed a 17-year-old critic by commissioning a sexually explicit edited video made from the teen's photo.

Image — Babix's Discord profile, showing admin and moderator roles

What is alleged

The incident is said to have happened in the Discord server of Goobr, a popular Kick streamer, where both were active. Babix had joined the server to promote BetBolt. When people argued with him or criticised BetBolt, he allegedly paid others to get photos of them and commissioned explicit edited images to humiliate them.

The teen had openly criticised BetBolt, pointing to its lack of licensing and an unstable team. In response, Babix allegedly paid someone for a clear photo of the teen's face, had an explicit video made from it, and sent it to him.

Evidence

Babix has admitted on Discord, more than once, to hiring people to make this kind of content about those he clashes with.

Image — Babix on Discord, admitting he hires people to make such content

When the teen confronted him and said he was filing a criminal case, Babix replied by questioning why a 17-year-old was in a gambling server, and later claimed he did not know the teen was a minor. The photo clearly showed a young person, which undermines that defence.

Image — Discord, 20 June 2025: the teen says he was 17 in the photo; Babix replies

Two screenshots in the original report showed the teen's photos. They are left out here, and the teen's name and avatar are covered, to protect a minor.

Player complaints: withdrawals and deposits

Forum users report withdrawals blocked for weeks and deposits that never reached their BetBolt balance.

Withdrawals delayed and blocked

Players waited more than 15 days for standard payouts. Many withdrawals were blocked with no explanation, updates or communication, leaving users to chase their own money. One player says he first contacted support on 1 May 2025, posted on the forum on 19 May, and still had no answer after 30 days.

Image — Forum complaint, 29 May 2025: payout blocked, no answer after 20 days

Image — Forum complaint: no answer from support within 30 days

Deposits moved out of user wallets

Several users say their deposits were moved to unrelated wallets instead of reaching their BetBolt balance. In one case from May 2025, a user found that the SOL in the deposit wallet BetBolt had given him had been transferred out. BetBolt first said the deposit was below the 0.05 SOL minimum and was lost. When pressed, its forum account replied: "We use third-party wallet provider service, and we have some limitations. We cannot just recover the funds and add it to your balance." To many users, this did not look like an error; it looked like theft.

Image — Forum, 26 May 2025: user's deposit transferred out of the wallet BetBolt gave h…

Image — BetBolt's reply: "We cannot just recover the funds and add it to your balance"

Influencer controversies

Two promotion deals drew public criticism: a disputed streaming contract with Esx Hibiki, and BetBolt's partnership with the streamer Bossmanjack.

Esx Hibiki: a disputed streaming deal

Streamer Esx Hibiki proposed a partnership of streams 7 days a week at $700 to $1,000 per stream, including promotional content and giveaways. BetBolt accepted and paid upfront.

After two streams, BetBolt said Esx had not met the 7-day requirement and had shown no visible results. It also said Esx had raised work on a website that was not part of the deal, and had not shown proof of progress when asked. Esx replied that larger promotions were being prepared and that the accusations were unfair, since the proposal did not mention exclusions such as "lossback" or require website proof. Both sides accused the other of miscommunication and bad faith.

Conversation between Esx Hibiki and Denis: video 1 · video 2

Image — Esx Hibiki's partnership proposal for BetBolt

Bossmanjack (AustinGambles)

Many user reviews accuse BetBolt of partnering with Bossmanjack, also known as AustinGambles, to promote a site that allegedly withholds withdrawals and misleads players. Several players say they were referred by Bossmanjack and then could not withdraw, some citing location restrictions enforced only after their deposits were accepted. Others question why BetBolt kept working with a streamer whose personal conduct and criminal charges have drawn criticism (Commonwealth of Virginia v. Austin Curtis Peterson).

Image — User review, 1 April 2025: "Scam casino"

Image — User review, 31 March 2025: "I wouldn't trust BetBolt"

Image — User review: deposit accepted, withdrawal refused after referral by Bossmanjack

Image — User review, 31 March 2025: "bossmanjack's favorite online casino"

Domain outage: betbolt.com suspended

betbolt.com went offline in June 2025 because its registrar, Namecheap, put the domain on clientHold over a legal matter that Namecheap says involves external authorities such as courts. BetBolt moved to betbolt.io.

What happened

At the time of the check, betbolt.com had been down for about 4 days and 19 hours. BetBolt announced a temporary move to betbolt.io, citing "issues with our current domain."

Image — betbolt.com status check: down for about 4 days 19 hours

Possible causes considered:

- Domain seizure or legal action by law enforcement
- Registrar action over a service violation or domain dispute
- Trademark infringement claim
- Blacklisting or security issues
- A DNS problem

Finding: a registrar hold after legal action

A WHOIS lookup shows the domain on clientHold. This status is set by the registrar, Namecheap Inc. It tells the global domain name system not to resolve the domain, which takes the website offline. It is a serious, uncommon measure, usually used in legal disputes, for non-payment or when a domain is due for deletion.

Record	Value
Domain	betbolt.com
Status	clientHold, clientTransferProhibited
Registrar	Namecheap Inc (IANA ID 1068)
Nameservers	harley.ns.cloudflare.com, stella.ns.cloudflare.com
Created	2014-12-20
Last updated	2025-06-20 23:14:27 UTC
Expires	2025-12-20

Image — betbolt.com domain record: status clientHold

Image — Registrar information: Namecheap Inc

Image — A clientHold or serverHold status means the domain is suspended

Image — What the clientHold status code means

Namecheap's reply

We emailed Namecheap's legal team about the case. Their reply said the matter "involves coordination with external authorities (e.g., courts)" and would be reviewed on 24 June 2025. We conclude that the outage was caused by legal and operational problems.

Image — Namecheap's reply: the matter involves coordination with external authorities (…

The move to betbolt.io

The site now runs on betbolt.io under a different registrar, TLD Registrar Solutions Ltd. That domain was registered on 4 November 2022 and last updated on 21 June 2025.

Image — betbolt.io domain record: registrar TLD Registrar Solutions Ltd

Probable sequence

1. Trigger: an external authority, likely a court or law enforcement agency in a jurisdiction where online betting is regulated or illegal, investigated BetBolt.
2. Order: it issued a legal order to Namecheap to act against betbolt.com.
3. Action: Namecheap's legal and compliance team placed betbolt.com on clientHold, taking it offline.
4. Result: BetBolt abandoned the domain and moved to betbolt.io with a new registrar.

Conclusion

BetBolt presents itself as a transparent, player-first crypto casino, but the evidence points the other way. It has no verifiable gambling licence, its founder dismissed underage play despite its own terms, players report blocked withdrawals and missing deposits, and its main domain was suspended after legal action. Its anonymous founder is most likely

Denis Seleznev, a young first-time operator, and a founding team member faces a serious allegation involving a minor. Together, these raise real questions about the credibility, maturity and leadership behind the platform.

Sources

- betbolt.com · betbolt.io
- BetBolt promotion video on Instagram
- "BetBolt" logo case study, designer Claudia Giralt
- Denis Seleznev's appointments, UK Companies House
- Podcast: Denis Seleznev, "Meet the Young Entrepreneur Transforming Web3"
- Solscan: user deposit wallet
- Esx Hibiki on X · conversation with Denis: video 1, video 2
- Commonwealth of Virginia v. Austin Curtis Peterson (Kiwi Farms thread)