Unveiling the People Behind Skin.Club

Ritik Jain · INVESTIGATAH · 29 October 2026

Summary

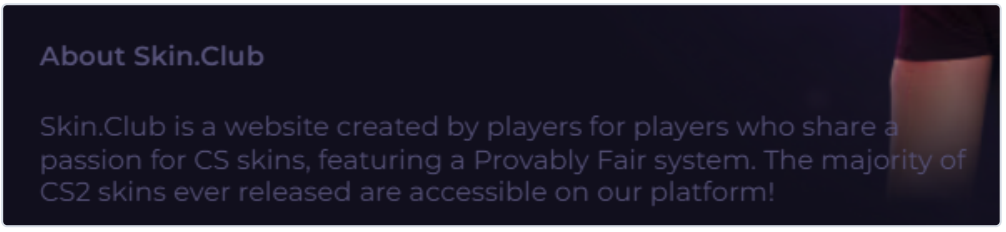

Four Russian entrepreneurs are the likely co-founders of Skin.Club: Alexey Moiseenkov, Alexander Karetin, Dmitry Beseda and Stas Kapinus, with Moiseenkov as the main co-founder. Skin.Club hides its team, so the link is built from several public sources that point the same way.

- Skin.Club's Discord, 29 December 2022: a team member announced that "our dear co-founder" had launched a new project, LF.Group.
- LF.Group's company record: LF Group Inc. lists its founders as Alex Karetin, Alexey Moiseenkov, Dmitry Beseda and Stas Kapinus.
- Moiseenkov's own posts: he describes himself as CEO and co-founder of LF.Group, and announced its sale to Xsolla in July 2024.
- Other ventures: the same people are behind Overgear (2017) and Cases4Real, other gaming and skin-gambling services.

About Skin.Club

Skin.Club, launched in 2018, is a case-opening site for Counter-Strike 2 (CS2) skins that works as a form of gambling. Players deposit money to open virtual cases with varying odds of receiving different in-game cosmetic items.

The site names no gambling licence. It also hides its founders, describing itself only as "a website created by players for players who share a passion for CS skins, featuring a Provably Fair system."

How the founders were identified

Four pieces of evidence link Skin.Club's hidden co-founder to LF.Group and its four named founders.

1. Skin.Club's Discord points to a co-founder

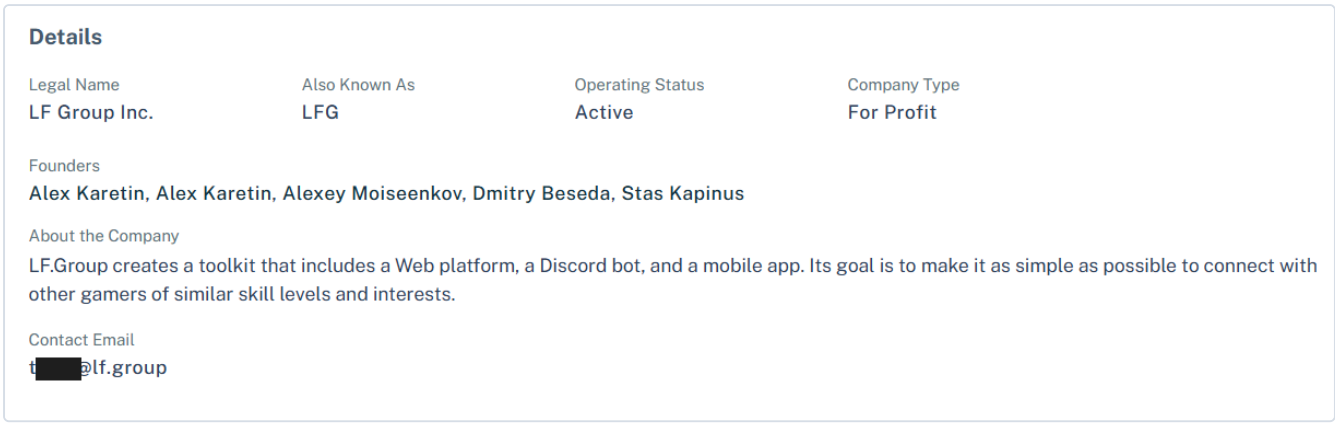

On 29 December 2022, a Skin.Club moderator announced: "our dear co-founder is making a new cool project." The project was LF.Group, presented as a calendar of Skin.Club and CS:GO events.

2. LF.Group names its founders

LF.Group builds a toolkit (web platform, Discord bot and mobile app) that helps gamers find others with similar skill and interests. Its company record, LF Group Inc., lists four founders: Alex Karetin, Alexey Moiseenkov, Dmitry Beseda and Stas Kapinus.

3. Moiseenkov confirms he built LF.Group

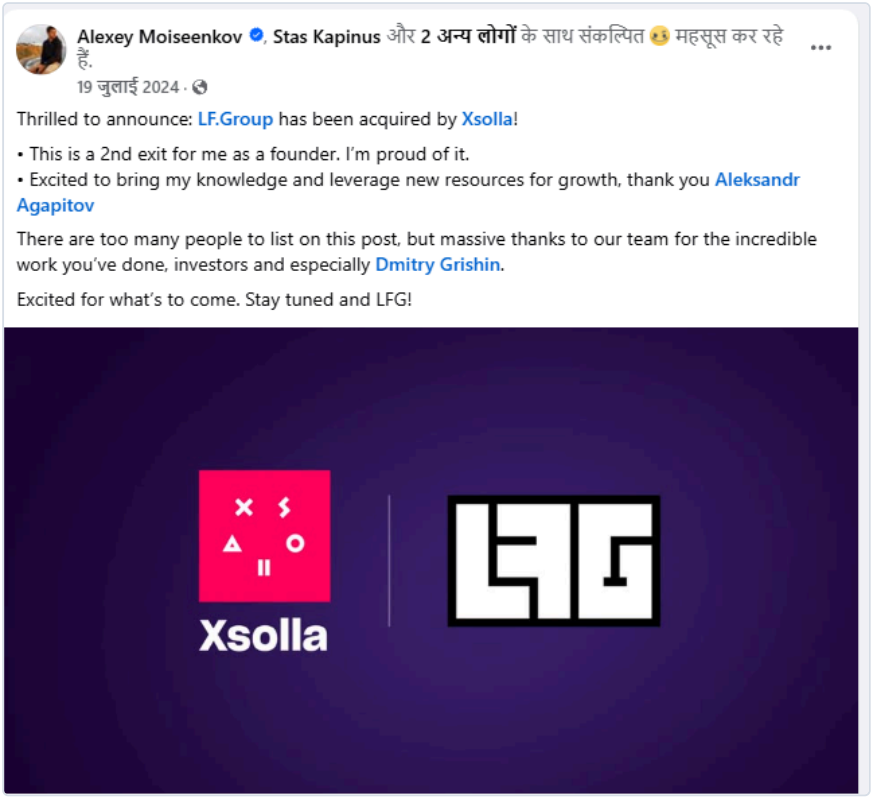

In a May 2024 Facebook post, Alexey Moiseenkov lists himself as "CEO & co-founder" of LF.Group, based in London, and writes that he was excited "to start new company LF Group Inc aka LFG." This matches the co-founder named in Skin.Club's Discord.

4. Xsolla acquires LF.Group

On 18 July 2024, LF.Group was acquired by Xsolla. Moiseenkov announced the sale on Facebook, tagging Stas Kapinus, and called it his second exit as a founder.

Conclusion

Alexey Moiseenkov is most likely the main co-founder behind Skin.Club, working with Alexander Karetin, Dmitry Beseda and Stas Kapinus. His own Facebook post says he built LF.Group, which matches the co-founder that Skin.Club's Discord said launched LF.Group. The same four have built other gaming and skin-gambling businesses, including Overgear and Cases4Real.
